Anti-Wilson Democrats, however, do not realize, perhaps, how desperate may be the Wilson political situation and the extent to which the president and his friends regard some activity on his part toward restoring peace as essential to his political welfare.

The Democratic Split.

A well-defined, if not a wide, split has appeared in the Democratic ranks and there are now two factions, one of which stoutly favors the renomination of Mr. Wilson, while the other opposes it. There are a few Democratic politicians who believe Mr. Wilson may fail of renomination. They argue that the last election in New Jersey demonstrated that he cannot carry his own state, that Mr. McAdoo's political activities in New York have alienated so large a faction of the Democrats there as to make the loss of New York certain, that Illinois is assuredly lost to Wilson, and that it is problematical if even the sending of the Democratic convention to St. Louis can save that state. They cite numerous western states in which the president's reasons the sending of the Democratic convention to St. Louis can save that state. THE DAILY NOVELET

THE PROFESSOR'S MISSTEP. An Evening Echo.

Hasten slowly, and without losing heart, put your work twenty times upon the anvil.—BOILEAU.

The Republican Committee Meeting.
As was to have been expected, the Democratic newspapers are seeking to create the impression that the recent meeting of the Republican National Committee constituted a triumph for the so-called "old guard" of that party. The harmony and enthusiasm which characterized that meeting filled the Democrats with fear and the word was immediately passed to Democratic editors to herald it as "an old guard victory."

Of course, there is no foundation for these reports. The meeting was not only harmonious, but was characterized by a remarkable disposition on the part of the friends of the various candidates to subordinate all personal prejudices and predilections to the success of the party.

The man who will be named at Chicago will be the one who then appears to be best fitted to lead the party to victory and to give the country as good an administration as to insure continued Republican success. The nearest which the committee came to anything like a test of strength between the old guard and the more progressive element of the party resulted in a victory for the latter.
